

DRS Supplier Diversity & Business Philosophy

At DRS Technologies, we are strongly committed to supporting the U.S. Small Business Administration's initiatives that encourage small business participation in federal procurements. We believe working with small businesses can help us mentor companies looking to support the federal market, improve supplier diversity, develop better solutions for our customers and create a distinct advantage in the increasingly competitive landscape.

We recognize that subcontracting within the federal procurement market can be daunting, particularly for small businesses that are trying to get started. We look forward to serving as a guide and mentor throughout this process.

DRS Technologies is interested in building partnerships with high-technology small businesses, including minority-owned businesses (which include Small Disadvantaged Business and HUBZone Empowerment businesses), Woman-Owned Business, Veteran-Owned Small businesses (which include Service Disabled Veteran-Owned concerns), and Native American businesses. We are also looking to partner with institutions that support these types of small businesses such as Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and Minority Institutions that support Native American, Women and other disadvantaged individuals.

DRS Technologies is committed to providing an opportunity for broad participation to small businesses that share our high standards of quality, service, timeliness, and safety at a competitive cost. As our business interests expand and adapt to meet today's demanding challenges, we are committed to ensuring that supplier diversity remains an integral part of our corporate procurement processes and that it becomes a commitment for all employees of DRS Technologies.
